Good morning,

It was a pleasure speaking with you on Friday. Thank you very much for making time on such a short notice. I thought the call was highly informative for the audience. I hope you enjoyed it as well.

There is no need for you to submit an invoice, and you should receive a check for the agreed upon honorarium over the next two weeks. It will be mailed to the address on your profile. Please let us know if there are any issues. I look forward to speaking with you again in the near future.

Very best,
Valentia

Apologies for the delay in my response. Thank you very much, you're far too kind. I actually don't have a medical or scientific background. I received a BA from Columbia, where I studied philosophy, political science, and economics. I went to Wall Street straight out of university to work as a pharma & biotech investment analyst. I only joined Guidepoint two months ago to lead healthcare content strategy, essentially creating and curating healthcare content/events for our clients (which are mainly members of the investment community).

That was a very inspiring interview, thank you for sharing. Your comments strongly resonated with me. My focus on the healthcare sector was pure luck initially, as my first boss selected me despite my background. I'm very grateful for that, because I now get to work with brilliant people (like yourself) and the developments in the space are indeed so meaningful and exciting. Most importantly, I am genuinely learning and being challenged on a daily basis.

I attended the Tehran international school for a few years. Such a small world!

Warm regards,
Valentia

dear Valentia

It would be indeed very nice to meet you. I can't tell from your signature exactly what your background is, but you are clearly very smart and seem to know a lot about this space— is ophthal one of your focus areas? And how did you get interested in doing what you are doing? (it's always interesting for me to hear how that happens) I am definitely not someone who wanted to always be a doctor but this is what happened for a variety of reasons.
